PROACTIVE CYBER DEFENCE STRATEGIES

October 05 - 08, 2020

Introduction

The cyberattacks or incidents are increasing exponentially not only in number but also in strength, variety and impact. Due that the organizations' reputation and business continuity are at stake. Previously, due to several reasons (such as overconfidence in their cyber resilience, ill-advised, unawareness etc.) many organizations followed reactive defence strategy and ignored the long term losses and recovery process from cyber-attacks

For instance, in reactive defence strategy, while dealing with the NotPetya malware, all the hazardous applications will be isolated that are identified as the source of the outbreak. Short term stop-gap solutions could be installing/reconfigure the firewall, DLP solutions and anti-malware applications. Therefore, the reactive approach is too much attack dependent, thus failed to provide a reliable solution

It is the high time to move the needle on proactive cyber defence from the reactive strategy. In proactive cyber defence an organization needs to see from where threats are coming, how they can move within the network, how much it can exploit the systems, where the vulnerabilities are present in the defences. Find and mitigate/close those before the attackers can take any advantages.

Objective

The objective of this e-Programme is to enlighten the participant regarding proactive cyber defence strategy, its benefits over reactive strategy, different proactive cyber defence exercises such as vulnerability assessment, breach & attack simulation (BAS), penetration testing, red team vs blue team, cyber drill and cyber security exercise. It will help the banks to strengthen their cyber defence provisions.

Contents

- Cyber Exercise
- VA vs. PT vs. BAS
- Cyber drill, Red Team vs Blue Team exercise, Bug bounty
- Tools and resources for cyber defence, Honeypot
- Case study

Mode of Teaching

Online teaching plus learning inputs through reading material, videos, webinars, assignments, quizzes, online interactions and clarifications. Each e-Programme will have four live webinars and course material will be made available in advance for study.

Who Can Participate?

Officers related to IT and security.

End Use:

This e-Programme will help the participant to strength their knowledge and awareness related to the cyber security and will help the banks to strengthen their cyber defence provisions.
