IDRBT launches PG diploma in Banking Tech

- Special Correspondent

The Institute for Development and Research in Banking Technology (IDRBT) in the city has launched a Post-Graduate Diploma in Banking Technology.

The full-time regular, one-year programme will commence in July 2016. It will provide essential learning inputs on technology implementation, integration and management besides enabling the students meet the changing technology requirements of the banking and financial sector.

The PGDBTians would also be a good fit for IT companies working in the banking and financial services domain, an IDRBT release said.

Director A.S. Ramasastry said as more banks are getting established the need for banking technology skilled employees is increasing. Several all India IT and payment systems organisations such as the National Payments Corporation of India are also in need of specialists in banking technology.

The last date for receipt of applications is May 31. More details on www.idrbt.ac.in.
